

FASHION TREND ANALYSIS

Insights. Style. Data.

- Performax leads the catalog with 3,029 products, reflecting its strong focus on offering a wide range of activewear options.
- Teamspirit, DNMX, and Netplay also have a significant presence, indicating healthy competition among major fashion brands.
- The top brands collectively account for a large share of the available products, showing that a few established labels dominate the market.
- Both western/casual wear and ethnic fashion brands appear in the top rankings, highlighting diverse customer preferences.
- A broad product assortment can help brands attract more shoppers, cater to varied tastes, and build stronger brand visibility.

Figure 1 :- Top 10 Brands by Product count

- Topwear emerges as the largest category, indicating consistently high consumer demand for items such as shirts, T-shirts, and tops.
- Westernwear and Footwear closely follow, highlighting the importance of versatile apparel and accessories in everyday fashion.
- The strong presence of Ethnicwear reflects the continued popularity of traditional and festive styles alongside modern trends.
- Bottomwear and Activewear maintain a solid share of the catalog, suggesting a balanced interest in both comfort and functionality.
- Categories such as Fusionwear, Lingerie, and Innerwear have comparatively smaller offerings, which may represent niche segments or opportunities for future expansion.

Figure 2 :- Top Categories by Product count

- Crew-Neck T-shirts (2,312 items) dominate the product mix, making them the clear everyday staple of the collection.
- Straight Kurtas (2,126) and Fit Shirts (2,117) appear in almost equal numbers, revealing a strong balance between ethnic and smart-casual fashion preferences.
- With 1,126 listings, Polo T-shirts stand out as a versatile choice that bridges casual and semi-formal dressing.
- The footwear segment is led by Sports Shoes (779), followed by Fit Jeans (755), indicating that comfort and practicality remain key purchasing drivers.
- Flat Sandals (537), Thong-Strap Flip-Flops (516), and Running Shoes (503) round out the top products, suggesting that consumers increasingly favor styles that combine ease of wear with everyday functionality.

Figure 3 :- Top 10 Products by Number of count

- The Mid-price segment (₹500–₹1,499) dominates the catalog with 18,237 products, establishing it as the sweet spot where affordability meets variety.
- Premium offerings (₹1,500–₹3,999) account for 9,872 items, indicating a strong consumer appetite for higher-quality and branded fashion. The Low-price category (below ₹500) includes 2,972 products, serving budget-conscious shoppers but representing a smaller share of the market.
- With only 501 products, the Luxury segment (₹4,000+) remains highly exclusive and caters to a niche audience.
- Overall verdict: The pricing landscape is clearly centered on value-driven fashion, with the mid-range segment emerging as the core engine of both assortment and consumer demand.

Figure 4 :- Distribution of Price Segment

- In the Low-price segment, Footwear (725 items) and Westernwear (648) lead the assortment, making budget-friendly style highly accessible to shoppers.
- The Mid-price range is driven by Topwear (4,989 products) and Westernwear (4,611), reinforcing this segment's role as the heart of the fashion market.
- Within the Premium category, Footwear (2,357 items) and Ethnicwear (1,944) emerge as key contributors, suggesting that consumers are willing to spend more on quality and occasion wear.
- The Luxury segment is relatively small, with Ethnicwear (227 products) and Footwear (182) accounting for the majority of offerings, highlighting the exclusivity of high-end fashion.
- Overall insight: As prices rise, the product mix shifts from everyday essentials toward specialized and premium styles, while the mid-price segment remains the strongest across nearly all categories.

Figure 5 :- Category Distribution across Price Segment

- For men, Fit Shirts (2,087 items) lead the catalog, followed by Crew-Neck T-shirts (1,620) and Polo T-shirts (1,105), reflecting a strong preference for smart-casual and versatile wardrobe staples.
- Men’s fashion also shows significant demand for practical essentials such as Fit Jeans (622) and a variety of footwear, including Sports Shoes (376) and Running Shoes (338).
- In the women’s segment, Straight Kurtas (2,113 products) dominate, underscoring the enduring popularity of ethnic wear.
- Women’s offerings are further enriched by styles such as A-line Kurtas (803), Crew-Neck T-shirts (692), and A-line Dresses (447), highlighting a blend of traditional and contemporary fashion choices.
- Key takeaway: Men’s assortments are centered on everyday casual wear, while women’s collections exhibit a broader mix of ethnic, western, and comfort-focused styles, reflecting more diverse fashion preferences.

Figure 6 :- Top Products Distribution Across Gender

- Activewear is led by Sports Shoes (385 items), followed by Running Shoes (243) and Crew-Neck T-shirts (228), highlighting the importance of performance and comfort in this segment.
- In Bottomwear, Fit Jeans (580) dominate, while Flat-Front Trousers (342) and Track Pants (198) cater to both formal and casual needs.
- Ethnicwear is overwhelmingly driven by Straight Kurtas (2,076 products), with A-line Kurtas (764) and Dress Materials (419) adding depth to the category.
- The Footwear category is characterized by versatile everyday styles, with Flat Sandals (535), Thong-Strap Flip-Flops (452), and Casual Shoes (446) leading the way.
- In Topwear, Fit Shirts (2,070), Crew-Neck T-shirts (1,411), and Polo T-shirts (1,061) reaffirm the enduring appeal of classic wardrobe essentials.
- Westernwear shows a balanced mix of casual and feminine styles, led by Crew-Neck T-shirts (665), Round-Neck Tops (292), and A-line Dresses (270).
- Smaller segments such as Fusionwear, Lingerie, and Innerwear remain niche, with specialized products like A-line Dresses (171), T-shirt Bras (63), and Packs (18) serving focused consumer needs.

Figure 7 :- Top 3 Products per Category

- Deep discounts exceeding 40% account for 15,194 products, making aggressive promotions the dominant pricing strategy in the catalog.
- No-discount items still represent a substantial share with 8,107 products, indicating that many products retain their full-price appeal.
- The Moderate discount tier (20–40%) includes 6,660 items, striking a balance between value for customers and profitability for brands.
- Light discounts of 10–20% are relatively uncommon, with only 1,621 products, suggesting that retailers tend to favor either significant markdowns or no discounts at all.
- Key insight: The discount landscape is polarized, with brands relying heavily on deep promotions while maintaining a sizeable portfolio of full-priced products.

Figure 8 :-Distribution of Products by Discount Tier

- Topwear (56.3%), Westernwear (58.0%), and Fusionwear (57.1%) rely heavily on deep discounts, showing that promotions are a key driver of sales in these fashion segments.
- Ethnicwear also favors substantial markdowns, with 52.2% of products offered at discounts above 40%, while nearly 29% remain at full price.
- Footwear stands out for its balanced pricing strategy: 41.5% of products are sold without discounts, and 35.7% receive moderate markdowns.
- Innerwear is the least promotion-driven category, with an impressive 87.5% of items sold at full price, suggesting strong and stable demand.
- Lingerie follows a different pattern, with almost half of its products (49.5%) falling in the moderate discount range.
- Overall takeaway: Discounting practices vary significantly by category, reflecting distinct consumer behaviors and pricing strategies across the fashion market.

Figure 9 :- Discount Distribution Across Categories

- In the men's segment, Topwear clearly dominates with 7,110 products, far outpacing Footwear (3,015) and Bottomwear (2,984).
- This indicates a strong emphasis on shirts, T-shirts, and other everyday essentials.
- For women, Westernwear leads the assortment with 6,641 items, followed by Ethnicwear (5,265) and Footwear (3,015), showcasing a rich blend of contemporary and traditional styles.
- The equal representation of Footwear (3,015 products) for both genders highlights the universal importance of this category across the fashion market.
- Key insight: Men's collections are concentrated around core apparel staples, whereas women's fashion exhibits a more diverse mix of style segments, reflecting broader and more varied consumer preferences.

Figure 10 :- Category Dominance Across Gender

- Among men, Fit Shirts lead with 2,087 products, followed by Crew-Neck T-shirts (1,620) and Polo T-shirts (1,105), emphasizing a strong preference for smart-casual essentials.
- In the women's segment, Straight Kurtas dominate with 2,113 items, while A-line Kurtas (803) and Crew-Neck T-shirts (692) further illustrate the blend of ethnic and contemporary styles.
- Notably, Crew-Neck T-shirts appear among the top products for both genders, highlighting their universal appeal and versatility.
- Final takeaway: Men's fashion is anchored by classic western staples, whereas women's collections are led by ethnic silhouettes, reflecting distinct style priorities across genders.

Figure 11 :- Product Type Dominance Across Gender

- Topwear (56.3%), Westernwear (58.0%), and Fusionwear (57.1%) rely heavily on deep discounts, showing that promotions are a key driver of sales in these fashion segments.
- Ethnicwear also favors substantial markdowns, with 52.2% of products offered at discounts above 40%, while nearly 29% remain at full price.
- Footwear stands out for its balanced pricing strategy: 41.5% of products are sold without discounts, and 35.7% receive moderate markdowns.
- Innerwear is the least promotion-driven category, with an impressive 87.5% of items sold at full price, suggesting strong and stable demand.
- Lingerie follows a different pattern, with almost half of its products (49.5%) falling in the moderate discount range.
- Overall takeaway: Discounting practices vary significantly by category, reflecting distinct consumer behaviors and pricing strategies across the fashion market.

Figure 12 :- Average Discount Percentage Across Gender

- The mid-price segment (₹500–₹1,499) is the clear leader across most categories, with especially strong representation in Topwear (4,989 products) and Westernwear (4,611).
- This range emerges as the sweet spot for mainstream fashion.
- Footwear maintains a broad presence across all price tiers, peaking at 2,766 items in the mid segment and 2,357 in the premium segment, highlighting consumers' willingness to invest in quality shoes.
- Ethnicwear shows remarkable depth, with 2,506 mid-range and 1,944 premium offerings, while also accounting for a significant share of the luxury market (227 items).
- The premium segment is particularly important for Bottomwear, which reaches its highest count of 1,488 products, slightly surpassing the mid-price range.
- Key takeaway: Most fashion categories achieve their greatest breadth in the mid-price tier, while premium and luxury segments are driven by specialized categories such as ethnicwear and footwear.

Figure 13 :- Price Segment Dominance Across Multiple Categories

- In the low-price segment, DNMX (453 products) leads the market, followed by Frisbee (385) and Avaasa Mix-N-Match (339), indicating strong competition in the value-fashion space. The luxury tier is dominated by W (139 items), with Biba (91) and Clarks (82) also maintaining a notable premium presence.
- In the highly competitive mid-price range, Performax (1,657 products) emerges as the frontrunner, closely followed by Teamspirit (1,583) and Netplay (1,479).
- Performax also commands the premium segment with 1,153 offerings, ahead of W (833) and Lee Cooper (588).
- Overall insight: Brands tend to establish clear strongholds within specific price tiers, allowing them to cater effectively to distinct customer segments and reinforce their market positioning.

Figure 14 :- Brand Dominance Across Price Segment